SCHOOL REPORT.

The following report of schools is respectfully submitted :

DIVISION NO. 1.

In this division two terms were had with Miss Ethel D. Hall as teacher. The teacher labored earnestly and faithfully in the discharge of her duties, and considering her years did admirably.

DIVISION No. 2.

This school was in charge of Miss Clara B. Barton for the summer term. Miss Barton is a good instructor, correct in all she teaches, and her labors were attended with as good degree of success as could be expected, considering the unfavorable condition of the school when she entered upon her work, and the fact that she did not receive the moral support of all the parents, which every teacher should, whose work is faithfully and competently performed. The only unfavorable criticism that could be offered was that her discipline was not sufficiently rigid. But no vile detractions, or unjust criticism can deprive her of the laurels she has won as a teacher, or the golden opinions formed of her by those who know her best as a lady and a Christian.

The fall term was placed under the tuition of Miss Blanche H. Morse, a young lady of blameless morals, and uniting a singular combination of all the essential requisites of a successful teacher, brilliant in scholarship, sound in judgment, a good disciplinarian, and possessing a most thorough education for the work of teaching, acquired under the training of the best modern instructors. Never did a teacher enter upon the work of the school room with a loftier or more exalted ambition.

But this school, in the last few years, had gradually fallen into a most deplorable condition by reason of a dearth of conservative educational sentiment on the part of some of the parents and citizens of this school division. Some of the pupils, especially the larger boys, had come to regard their school days as holidays, and the object for which they sought in study hours was pleasure. They had been indulged in this desire to such an extent that they defied the rules and regulations of the school, and seemed to regard themselves as subject to very limited restraint. In this course of action and conduct they had during this term, the sympathy of certain parents, whose judgment, we are charitable enough to believe, was clouded by reason of the pronounced opinion of their children that under the tuition of a teacher of their own election they could make great proficiency in their studies, and therefore believed that the educational board had failed of its duty because it did not consult the wishes and judgment of their children in the selection of teacher. There were three large boys in this school tinctured with this same feeling, whose self-respect and respect for their teacher should have constrained them to obey the rules of school, who pursued an unmanly course to destroy the school because of disappointed desire in that the teacher was not of their own choice. The result was that the teacher administered corporal punishment which served somewhat to restrain them from acts of disobedience. This refractory course on the part of these three boys, together with a manifest dislike for study by a number of the pupils, acquired through absence of proper incentive to mental effort in the past and the unfavorable attitude of a few parents towards the school, militated against the faithful labors of the teachers, whose work, otherwise, would have been attended with unqualified success. Miss Morse needs no encomium from us, for in the solid attributes of intellectual ability she takes rank with the best teachers of our public schools. The winter term was placed under the supervision of Mr. George Dodge of Sunapee, a gentleman whose character as a man, and whose reputation as a teacher had been firmly established. The same causes that bred trouble during the fall term, manifested themselves almost at the opening of the term. The teacher sought to bring three unruly boys to a compliance with the rules of school by dispensing a reasonable external punishment, but in two instances it did not avail. The board was called upon and those two, who by their conduct, refused respectful and proper observance of the rules and regulations of the school, were expelled. Upon the action of the board several families withdrew their children from school. We have never made inquiry as to why this was done, nor do we regard it as our province to determine since we are cognizant of the fact that the teacher performed faithfully and impartially, and with signal ability and devotion the mission assigned him. It is certainly to be regretted, for the children's sake, that they were withdrawn, for a most favored opportunity has passed unimproved and can never be recalled. He who would succeed in the highest measure in the battle of life, in face of the active competition and fierce rivalry of the present day, must be educationally equipped for the struggle. Emerson has said:—"He who stops to tie his shoe string falls behind." The final examination exercises of the school evinced that the pupils, who remained, had made most commendable progress in their studies, and therefore had wisely improved the school. The teacher's clear presentation and elucidation of those principles which form the basis of a good common school education has prepared these pupils for very successful work in the future.

DIVISION NO. 3.

The summer term was taught by Miss Henrietta A. Grandy. Miss Grandy is well qualified for the art of teaching, and the work she did was thoroughly and efficiently performed. Sickness somewhat interrupted the progress of the school, but the final examination exercises showed that commendable progress had been made. Miss Bertha E. Sawyer had charge of the fall term. Teacher, pupils and parents seemed to be in perfect harmony, a condition vitally essential to a successful school, and the result was what such concord almost invariably warrants—a good school. The board was exceedingly fortunate for the winter term in securing the services of Mrs. George Dodge, whose long and varied experience in the school-room, (she having previously taught seventy-seven terms) together with a most happy faculty and natural aptitude for imparting knowledge, pre-eminently qualifies her for the vocation she has chosen. It tasks our language to adequately express our appreciation of the excellent work here accomplished. The school was unconditionally and unqualifiedly successful. The pupils were correctly and most thoroughly drilled in all their studies, and the teacher's clear and distinct enunciation of principles, must leave an indelible impression upon the minds of the pupils committed to her charge. The conservative and loyal support, throughout the year, of parents and citizens of this school division, had a healthy and wholesome influence upon the school.

DIVISION NO. 4.

Mrs. Leslie H. Miller assumed the duties of instructor for the two terms held in this division. Always pleasing and lady-like in her deportment, she won the confidence and respect of the pupils in the beginning, which laid the foundation for very successful work. Mrs. Miller labored unremittingly in the interests of her pupils, and that her labors were productive of excellent results, was attested at the final examination exercises in which the teacher and pupils acquitted themselves in a manner highly creditable.

DIVISION NO. 5.

Two terms were had in this division with Miss Sybil B. Blanchard as teacher. Miss Blanchard labored faithfully in the discharge of her duties and good progress was made.
